Bark Canoes and Skin Boats of North America Edwin Tappan Adney 2007-10-17 The bark canoes of the North American Indians, particularly those of birchbark, were among the most highly developed manually propelled primitive watercraft. Built with Stone Age tools from available materials, their design, size, and appearance were varied to suit the many requirements of their users. Even today, canoes are based on these ancient designs, and this fascinating guide combines historical background with instructions for constructing one. Author Edwin Tappan Adney, born in 1868, devoted his life to studying canoes and was practically the sole scholar in his field. His papers and research have been assembled by a curator at the Smithsonian Institution.

Planning topics includes family help, kitchen planning and storage, safety, appliance selection, clean-up, shopping, menu planning, etc. The recipes give directions for food preparation techniques, handling containers, serving, cooking, etc. Information is included on sources of help, equipment, and tools.

MADISON AVENUE, OHIO, 1970- Wallace J. Gordon 2010-06-04 All the best ads and commercials are written in high-powered advertising agencies in New York City, right? In fancy offices perched high on the gleaming towers of Manhattan, right? By mythical creatures just returning from three martini lunches, right? Wrong, wrong, wrong. And once more, just for good measure. Once upon a time I was fired. Again. I'd been writing ads for agencies in Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis and New York. For almost twenty years. Then one day I found myself writing them in the sometimes sleepy, sometimes far from sleepy little city of Marion, Ohio. How I got there, what I did there, and all the rest of it makes a rather interesting story. At least to me. Although Gertrude Stein famously said, "There's no there there," don't believe it for a minute. She sure wasn't talking about Marion, Ohio. Read on, gentle reader, read on...
